MUSIC. MEDICINE. SERVICE.

The Longwood Symphony Orchestra is the premier ensemble of Boston's medical community, composed primarily of healthcare professionals who double as talented musicians. Members combine their passions for music and medicine into an organization that harnesses the powers of music to delight, entertain and heal. For 40 years, the LSO has presented concerts at Jordan Hall that have raised awareness and nearly $3,000,000 for partnering organizations dedicated to Boston's medically underserved.

Two-time winner of the League of American Orchestras' ASCAP Award for Adventurous Programming of Contemporary Music, LSO Music Director Ronald Feldman has achieved critical acclaim for his work as a conductor and cellist. Feldman joined the Boston Symphony Orchestra as a cellist at the age of 19 and played with the orchestra until 2001. He served as assistant to Boston Pops Principal Conductor and composer John Williams from 1989 to 1993. Feldman joined the Longwood Symphony Orchestra as Music Director in July 2012. This season marked his final as music director; we are incredibly grateful for his ten years of artistic leadership!

By supporting the LSO at tonight's gala, you help the orchestra heal the community through music at concerts and via its community partnerships with local nonprofit groups. Thank you for joining the LSO, and helping us celebrate The Healing Art of Music!

Dream big. Do great.

Community Champion & Honoree

Joel T. Katz, M.D.

Director, Internal Medicine Residency
Program, Brigham &
Women's Hospital

Joel T. Katz, M.D., M.A.C.P. is a primary care physician, infectious diseases specialist, Director of the internal medicine residency program, and Vice Chair for Education at Brigham and Women's Hospital, where he is the Marshall A. Wolf Chair in Medical Education. He is associate professor of medicine at the Harvard Medical School.

In addition to his clinical practice and administrative roles, a former biomedical illustrator, Dr. Katz has championed the use of visual arts and humanities to improve patient care and medical education. He is the director of the HMS course "Training the Eye: Improving the Art of Physical Diagnosis," in which students hone their physical diagnosis acumen through the study of fine arts at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. He serves on the Faculty Executive Committee of the Arts and Humanities Initiative at HMS. To support the personal wellbeing and musical enlightenment of his trainees, Dr. Katz has donated Longwood Symphony Orchestra tickets to every concert for two decades.

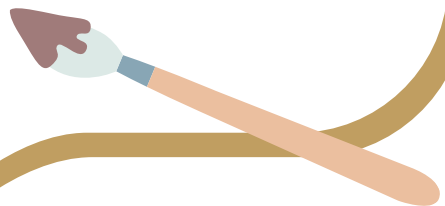

Congratulations Joel!

Thank you for enriching our lives with your visionary work on incorporating the humanities in medicine!
You are a true role model of how to take care of the whole patient and trainee.

With much gratitude,

THE OFFICE FOR Diversity Inclusion &
Community Partnership

Congratulations, Joel, on your well-earned recognition as this year's Longwood Symphony Orchestra Gala Honoree. This recognition is based on your years of efforts to incorporate Arts and Humanities into medical training, and your special longstanding friendship with the Longwood Symphony Orchestra.

Steve and Annie Wright

In honor of Dr Katz, my longtime physician and a kind friend.

Bharat B Bhatt

To me, Dr. Katz is the quintessential physician:
dedicated, kind, caring, empathetic, and of course knowledgeable. He always has time to listen, which is something of a lost art.

Vicki Correa

We honor your illustrious legacy as a master educator and exceptional mentor. Your dedication and humility inspires us.

With gratitude and admiration,

Bravo, Joel! We celebrate your support of the role of art in medicine!

Love, from Laura, Dan, Julianna, Jeremy and all your brothers and sisters.

To our good friend, Dr. Joel Katz. In appreciation of your dedication to the Longwood Symphony Orchestra. Congratulations on this great honor!

Dan and Wendy Kraft

Congratulations, Joel

and GRATITUDE

for all your student advising
over the years.

Sue Pauker

Maestro Feldman,

Kristi and I salute you for your 10 years as Music Director of the LSO. You have inspired all of us in the orchestra, and brought us to a new level of musicianship. We have appreciated your friendship and wish you and Elizabeth the best in the next chapters of your life!

Mark and Kristi

In appreciation of LSO musicians' contributions to their communities and their fine artistic and professional accomplishments.

Drs. Bruce and Ricki Barnett

The Harvard Medical School community is grateful to Dr. Joel Katz and to the LSO for fostering healing through the arts.

If Knots For Us

(in honor of Joel Katz, MD)

It's hard for everyone.

The best of us
get the rest of us
but don't always get
that we're stacked
at an angle
of repose,
choice irreverent.

Difficult for us
is a fuss we don't cultivate
polyester
petals and dust
near the vent are
enough, and radiant,
radiating
how hard it is for us.

But some of us
we grin
we calm
we gnash
we plod
we can be a warm palm
strength and silk

The best mom and pop
work on themselves
more than their kin
and kids:
applause
is more about
the applauder than
the applauded.

It's hard and we push
up, perhaps thankless
but not unthanked -
from one who has been held
and told
again Thank You

Fund The Future

The Healing Art of Music program is a unique community partnership program that brings together Longwood Symphony Orchestra's focus on music, medicine, and service.

By partnering with nonprofit organizations for each of LSO's four season concerts at Jordan Hall, we have helped raise much needed funds, community awareness, and capacity for long-term success. Since 1991, the Healing Art of Music program has helped more than 55 nonprofits raise over $2.8 million.
